

Due Diligence Training for Supervisors and Managers

Course Description

The OHS Act Sec. 25 places the responsibility on the employer to only appoint "competent" supervisors. "Competent Person" is defined as a person with Training, Knowledge, and Experience to organize the work & its performance.

Without appropriate training or knowledge, how can supervisors effectively control safety within their workplace? This program equips supervisors and managers with the tools required. Both identify failures within current safety systems, as well as how to effectively manage such failures.
